2 Conducting Value-Added Course on Welding

Welding is an essential component of many industries such as the automotive industry, the construction industry, the aviation industry, and many more. To enhance the welding skills of students, Department of Mechanical Engineering in association with the Center of Excellence in Manufacturing and Automation organised a 6 weeks value added course on "Welding Technology" for Diploma 3rd semester students. The course was conducted during 19th September 2022 – 28th October 2022. Dr. Umesh Vishwakarma, Mr. Prashant Padhi, and Mr. Narendra Deshmukh conducted the course.

3 Conducting Guest Lecture

Department of Metallurgical Engg. In association with the Society of Metallurgical Engineers (ASM) organized a technical talk on Effect of Ultrasonic Shot Peening on the Low Cycle Fatigue Behaviour of the Alloy Ti-6Al-4V by Dr. Saneev Kumar Rana, Dy. Mgr. (QA), NSPL on 29 October 2022.

4 Installation of advanced machineries in Lab

The installation of two highly sophisticated characterization tools has been done in department of Metallurgical Engineering under Center of Excellence in Steel Technology (COEST) in G-08.

Scanning Electron Microscope (ZEISS EVO 18- Germany Made):

The equipment is having resolution of 3 nm (2 nm) @ 30 kV SE and W (LaB6) and magnification up to 1,000,000. The SEM is usually used to generate high-resolution images of shapes of objects and to show spatial variations in chemical compositions: 1) acquiring elemental maps or spot chemical analysis using EDS, 2) discrimination of phases based on mean atomic number (commonly related to relative density) using BSE. The SEM is also widely used to identify phases based on qualitative chemical analysis and/or crystalline structure. Precise measurement of very small features and objects down to 50 nm in size is also accomplished using the SEM. Back scattered electron images (BSE) can be used for rapid discrimination of phases in multiphase samples.

X-Ray Diffraction Unit (Rigaku SmartLab- Japan Made):

Rigaku SmartLab is an Automatic High Resolution Multipurpose PC Controlled X-Ray Diffractometer System with Vertical Theta-Theta Goniometer for Horizontal Sample mount with Solid State 1-D Detector, Consisting of: X-RAY GENERATOR: Maximum Rated Output: 3 KW continuous rated maximum output power. Operation: Computer controlled. X-Ray Tube Shield: Electro Magnetic Shutter interlocked with Radiation Enclosure. Safety Device: Abnormal cooling water, flow rate, water Pressure, abnormal XG load (over load, line current, abnormal low and high voltage, emergency stop switch, leak breaker). X-Ray is completely shut off if any fail safe devices are tripped or fail to operate. X-Ray Tube: Ceramic Cu-Target with Long Fine Focus & Ni-² Filter 2.2kW. GONIOMETER: The compact Vertical Goniometer mount the sample in a Horizontal and Stationary position. ,-, is ideal configuration when dealing with large or irregular samples, loose powder and liquid sample. The Goniometer uses highly sensitive pulse motor drive with minimum step 0.0001°(,d/,s). The goniometer provides both symmetric and asymmetric illumination.

XRD is a highly versatile technique that provides chemical information for elemental analysis as well as for phase analysis. Besides chemical characterization, XRD is extremely useful for stress measurements as well as for texture analysis. Samples to be analyzed using XRD must be crystalline however the technique can provide the degree of crystallinity in polymers. XRD has traditionally been used for bulk samples analysis. But with the advent of new optical systems, thin film analysis can also be carried out. The technique uses Bragg's law of diffraction.
